What's the importance of finding the NET primary?

Neuroendocrine tumors are a complicated malignancy because they can come from all over the body. Therefore, they require specialists who understand the different types to determine the best treatment strategy. In general, most NETs come from the respiratory and digestive "Neuroendocrine Tumors, A Primer for Healthcare Professionals" is a collaborative publication written by NET experts and will be made available soon, free of charge, to NET patient support groups. We also plan to have a downloadable copy available on our website and are working on distribution to physician groups.

This publication is intended to provide quality information in a quick-read format to healthcare professionals.

The Healing NET Foundation, under the direction of our Chief Medical Advisor, Dr. Eric Liu, assembled an expert group of physicians and scientific professionals to produce this brochure. It is our hope that the peer-to-peer language will appeal to physicians, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, nurses, as well as patients who are seeking or need a better understanding of neuroendocrine cancer and the latest treatment options.

Our mission is to advocate for the right team, the right treatment, at the right time for NET patients. We hope this first effort is a great launch to that goal.

If you want to make sure your support group is included, please email us:
